Before You Go

- Do your research. Before you travel to a new destination, take some time to learn about the local culture, customs, and laws. This will help you avoid making any faux pas or putting yourself in danger.
- Make copies of your important documents. Keep copies of your passport, visa, travel insurance, and other important documents separate from the originals. This way, if your originals are lost or stolen, you will still have copies to prove your identity.

- Be aware of your surroundings. When you're traveling, it's important to be aware of your surroundings and the people around you. Pay attention to who is following you or seems to be watching you.
- Trust your instincts. If you feel like something is wrong, it probably is. Don't ignore your instincts. If you feel unsafe, leave the area or ask for help.

When You're There

- Be careful who you trust. Don't give your personal information to anyone you don't know or trust. Be wary of people who offer you unsolicited help or advice.
- Don't overshare on social media. When you're traveling, it's tempting to share your experiences with friends and family on social media. However, be careful not to overshare, as this can make you a target for criminals.
- Be careful when using ATMs. When you're using an ATM, be aware of your surroundings and the people around you. If you see anything suspicious, cancel your transaction and leave the area.
- Don't carry large amounts of cash. Carrying large amounts of cash can make you a target for theft. Instead, use traveler's checks or credit cards whenever possible.

After You Travel

- Report any suspicious activity. If you see something suspicious, report it to the local authorities or your tour operator. Don't try to investigate it yourself.

- Stay informed. Keep up to date on the latest travel advisories and safety information. This will help you avoid traveling to dangerous areas or putting yourself in danger.

Additional Tips

- Consider purchasing travel insurance. Travel insurance can provide you with peace of mind in case of an emergency. Make sure to read the policy carefully before you purchase it.
- Learn some basic self-defense moves. Knowing how to defend yourself can help you avoid becoming a victim of crime.
- Be confident. Criminals are more likely to target people who look vulnerable or lost. Be confident and aware of your surroundings, and you will be less likely to become a victim.

Remember, the best way to stay safe when you travel is to be aware of your surroundings, trust your instincts, and take precautions to protect yourself from becoming a victim of crime.
