The Roots of Lit Memoir

The origins of Lit Memoir can be traced back to the early 20th century, with groundbreaking works such as W.E.B. Du Bois's "The Souls of Black Folk" and Mary MacLane's "The Story of Mary MacLane." These pioneers set the stage for a new genre that embraced subjectivity, honesty, and the exploration of personal truths.

In the 1960s and 70s, the confessional movement in poetry and the rise of feminist literature further fueled the growth of Lit Memoir. Authors such as Sylvia Plath, Anne Sexton, and Erica Jong explored themes of identity, mental illness, and societal expectations, paving the way for a more open and vulnerable approach to storytelling.
